

The Flame for Truth

Two-day introduction into the Diamond Approach in Singapore

Who am I? Why am I here? These are often burning questions if you are on a spiritual path. They are questions that you cannot answer with your mind and that actually should remain questions, because they act like a flame, a flame that keeps your orientation for truth alive.

If you answer these questions only with your mind, you will put out that flame. Do you ever allow yourself to question, to have a burning question – and not to put out the flame quickly with the first answer that comes? Can we rid ourselves of all influences – of the influences of others' ideas and of our own past – and remain in the now, as an inquiry?

The inquiry into these kind of questions is a completely personal quest. It is your situation, your life, your mind; no one else can answer these questions for you. And for this inquiry to succeed in the face of distractions and difficulties, you need a strong flame in your heart: your inner Flame for Truth.

What are we going to do?

In order to give you an experiential taste of the work of the Diamond Approach we invite you for a two day introduction in Singapore.

In these two days we will focus on your inner Flame for Truth: what limits this Flame, and how can we support its expansion and deepening.

There will be talks, small groups and you will have your personal inquiry into these questions. Also there will be the option for a Diamond Approach private session of one hour the two days after the retreat, if you would like to experience that.

Ongoing group

Currently we are actively exploring starting an ongoing group in South-East Asia in June 2018.

These two days in Singapore can be a good opportunity to see if the Diamond Approach is a path you might be interested in and to get know the teachers better.
